

ABSTRACT

Instrument for the treatment of the apical portion of radicular dental canals, has a conical shaft (1) having at least one helicoidal working ridge. The active anterior portion (2) of the instrument is comprised of at least two successive cones whose opening (,X) decreases from the anterior point (3) of the instrument in the direction of its active posterior portion.